A party composed of the following named persons, F. C. Ralls and family, A. B. Williford and wife, Carl Hayman and family, W. O. Ralls, Mesdames George Parker and Jacob Wey and Miss Dauphine Simmons, went out to Horse Creek on Tuesday, armed with rifles and harpoons for the purpose of capturing a good portion of the finny tribe that inhabit this beautiful stream. We presume the fish succeeded in finding places of safety in which to shelter themselves, as the fishermen did not seem to have very much trouble in hauling their catch and then they did not return to the city through main street, and that is another very good sign that their luck was not very good.

A BRILLIANT SOCIAL SUCCESS. The fourth Semi-Annual Recital of the Ladies' Friday Musicales, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Seward, was a decided feature of the season. The spacious parlors were crowded by the guests of the members and each and every one voted a unanimous compliment upon the ladies for their energy and ambition for maintaining a successful club. The club is composed of married ladies and all the more reason for being congratulated. The opening number was the ever beautiful and brilliantly arranged "Il Trovatore," the masterpiece of Verdi-Melbaite, and was beautifully rendered by Mrs. C. C. Chollar and Mrs. Jas. Hollingsworth.

(2.) Rubenstein's "Thou art Like A Flower," by Mrs. A. E. Bennett, who sang this splendid aria with fine voice and finish.

(3.) Godard's 3rd Mazurka, by Mrs. T. B. King followed, and was one of the prize numbers.

(4.) Mrs. R. E. Brown exhibited great taste and skill in her rendition of "The Polonaise," by Rosselen, and also was a success as the accompanist for the evening.

(5.) Mrs. John Treadwell and Mrs. Hollingsworth sang the ever beautiful "Peace to Thy Spirit," by Verdi, which could not have been better rendered, both ladies possessing sweet and appealing voices.

(6.) Mrs. Mitchell gave a clever rendition of Donizetti's "Lucia De Lammoor," and showed a most excellent taste for interpretation of the splendid opera from which the arrangement was taken.

(7.) Ketterer's bright and racy "Boute en Train," was splendidly given by Mrs. Carl Hayman.

(8.) One of the prettiest numbers was "Keep A Loving Heart For Me," by Mrs. W. H. Seward. Mrs. Seward possesses a very sweet voice.

(9.) Then followed the "Barcarolle," from Bennett's 4th concerto, by Mrs. C. C. Chollar, who played it with the skill and finish of an artist.

(10.) Mrs. E. D. Treadwell sang "Good-Night, Little Girl." Mrs. Treadwell is a splendid singer, and lost nothing of her former reputation in this beautiful lullaby.

(11.) The last number was Sidney Smith's "Galle De Cours," by Mrs. R. E. Whidden, and true to the title, it was indeed hearts delight, and was well rendered.

After the program the guests were served with delightful cake and ice cream. After the assemblage bid adieu to the hostess and club, wishing them increased success.
